Class History

As we recall the events of the past four years, we see in our mind's eye a great drama being enacted on the stage of time. The characters, in their different roles, are those of the Class of 1950. Although one hundred and six make their appearance in Act I only fifty-seven are seen in Act IV. The reasons for a smaller number in the climax of the drama are many. Below is given a brief outline of the drama, concerning the students who successfully played their parts until the final curtain was drawn.

ACT I

Place: Honaker High School
Time: September 1946-May 1947
Characters: One hundred six Freshmen
Sponsor: Miss Mary Evelyn Johnson
Class Officers: President, Leon Owens
Sec.-Treas., Geneva Dye

There was little action in Act I except for finding ones way about the place. However, there were signs of mental confusion and disturbances because the environment was new and very different. There was little difference, however, in the academic courses, but by the end of the year, when we were making our schedule for the coming year, we were forced to think of math, biology, history, foreign languages and other holy terrors.

ACT II

Place: Honaker High School
Time: September 1947-May 1948
Characters: Eighty-four Sophomores
Sponsor: Mrs. Carmie Davis
Class Officers: President, Leon Owens
Sec. Treas., Patty Parris

At the beginning of the second act less confusion was manifested and the characters were more confident of the role which they had chosen to play. The parts required more effort and perseverance, each day. To our sorrow many were unable to adjust themselves to these drastic changes and we saw enacted in our very presence the law of "The Survival of the Fittest". At the final curtain call of 1948, there were only 62 players left.

ACT III

Place: Honaker High School Time: September 1948-May 1949 Characters: Sixty-two Juniors Sponsor: Mrs. Audie Miller

Class Officers: President, Howard Fletcher Sec.-Treas., Peggy Jackson

In this act the notable American History came into the foreground and resentment for it appeared in the faces of the players. Class rings came on the scene; a party for the Seniors of '49 aroused much interest, and commencement for the class of '49 thrilled the players of Act III. However, not all was joy and happiness for the third act was one which depicted sorrow and gloom because in November 1948, Mr. Harvey Robinson, one of the best loved teachers in Honaker High School stepped gently out of the seene to join the innumerable caravan that moves to that mysterious realm.

ACT IV

Place Honaker High School
Time: September 1949-May 1950
Characters: Fifty-seven Seniors
Spousor: Miss Mary Sue Fuller
Class Officers: President, Lloyd White
Secretary, Geneva Whited
Treasurer, Howard Fletcher

Act four opened in September 1949 with fifty-seven players each hopeful and happy to have a view of the summit then in the not too distant future. In spite of gleeful occasions such as The Harvest Festival, Selection of Commencement announcements and cards, Class banquet and party, publication of the Torch, Class Play presentation and many other activities, there was much arduous studying to be done. Some of the characters enjoyed that too and were always happy but others became unhappy at the thought of class preparation even though they recognized its importance in the completion of the drama.

Class Prophecy

By Mildred Ball, Mary Sue Johnson, Patty Parris)

One cool spring night in 1965 as I was taking a plane trip to Hawaii, I had a strange and exciting experience. When I turned on the plane's television set I saw Jack Hess, one of the nation's foremost historians, who had collected data concerning each member of the Honaker High School senior class of 1950, and Brittain Turner, a promising Movie director of Hollywood, who had made pictures of the individual classmates busy in their chosen profession. Together they had worked out the most interesting program on television I have ever witnessed.

First I saw Glen Jackson, who introduced the program and made a very brilliant speech concerning the participating members.

As I sat there wondering who would be the first to appear on the screen, I saw Marion Lee Akers going about her duties as manager of the Honaker Beauty Shoppe.

Jean Ann Baldwin was as beautiful as ever in a red morning dress, as she was busy making biscuits for her husband, Garel, in their little cottage at Garden Creek.

Mildred Ann Ball was displaying her latest painting of Jack Smith in the National Art Gallery.

Don Barnhart, owner of the Kregar Mining Co. was busy giving his men their orders for the day.

John Artrip, a traveling salesman for the Fuller Brush Company, was demonstrating his brushes to Freda Lockhart, who is now a housewife at Richlands, Va.

Mildred Boyd, much taller and thinner with a distinct old maid air was teaching English at Honaker High School.

Myrtle Brown with that well remembered smile was on roller skates as she gave curb service at a restaurant at Skeggs. Va.

The next person to flash on the screen was Doris Call, who was down on her knees telling Charlie-Munsey that she thought when a couple had dated for eighteen years, it was time to get married.

Professor Bill Counts, having gained an almost unbelievable stature was expounding "Campus Conduct" to the seniors of Emory and Henry College.

Doris Crabtree, a popular Broadway dancer, was driving her new Buick up Big A Mountain to visit her parents after her sixth visit to Reno.

J. B. Crabtree looked on proudly as Sonny Faye Dye, Virginia Health Inspector posted a notice saying that his restaurant "The Crabapple" was a Grade A restaurant.

Geanette Crabtree, in a crisp nurses uniform was helping Dr. Bob Hillman of the Lebanon General Hospital perform an operation on our beloved teacher, Miss Mary Sue Fuller.

Kenenth Dye was standing in front of a new Chevrolet car he invented that could go around a curve on two wheels.

Bob Deel was displaying pole cat hides which by a new process of tanning looked very much like expensive Mink.

Mona Dye was busy with routine work in the office of her employer. Dr. Kyle Wells, the most famous dentist in Southwest Virginia.

Lloyd Dye, owner of the Swords Creek Mining Co. was having a private conference with his secretary, Oma Gay Dye.

The next person to be seen on the screen was Irlon Honaker, who was demonstrating a new kers of hair tonic on Gene Dye, whose head was so slick and shiny that the glare hurt my eyes.

Peggy Dyr was securing a patent for her new type of freckle cream, guaranteed to remove fred es remight.

Class Prophecy

Elmer Fuller, employed by the A & P at Grundy, was stocking the shelves and smiling above dark rimmed glasses at a buxom school teacher.

Howard Fletcher and his wife, Mildred VanDyke, were cleaning the yard around their new stucco farm house at Little River.

Roberta Gent, swimming instructor at V. I. College, was having a talk with the board of directors about having a new swimming pool installed.

Then I saw a handsome man writing a letter and looking very miserable. It was Carl Henry Hart writing to Beatrice Fairfax, asking her what to do when you have ten girl friends and there are only seven short days in a week.

Jimmy Hurt had gone into the hold-up business. He was making a new kind of suspenders. James Honaker was interviewing a contestant on his radio program "It Pays to be Ignorant."

The next scene was in a lawyer's office. The lawyer was none other than Jack Johnson and his client was Miss Lorene Musick.

Clifford Jessee was trying in vain to teach his young son to never trust a woman.

Lula Jackson was in Washington, D. C. obtaining a patent for her new medicine, called "Jackson's Little Worm Pills."

Betty Jackson was a saleslady for the "Superform Girdle Co."

Then there was that plucky little Nellie Jackson, trim in a crisp uniform going about her duties as a gracious hostess on one of the modern American Airlines planes.

Peggy Jackson was entering a bathing beauty contest in Florida to be judged by Mr. Dallas Starnes.

I was very surprised to see Mary Sue Johnson and Geneva Whited lying fast asleep in a cotton field in Alabama. They had chosen many occupations for a living, but had finally decided on cotton picking.

In the distance I saw a night club "The Star" on big A Mountain, featuring Virginia Simms as the feather dancer who had great ability to entertain the customers.

Betty Martin was in her well furnished kitchen having a quiet supper with her husband, Polk Fields. Their four children were patiently waiting in the back yard for their turn to eat.

Much to my surprise, there was Betty Jo Musick. working as personal secretary to Jimmy Durante.

Kyle Miller was being awarded a silver eup for breaking the world record as a running champion.

Wilbur Miller was welcoming a new member into his Lonely Hearts Club. The new member was none other than Mary Rose Wilson.

Patty Parris and her husband, Ray Mason, were boarding the train at Penn Station, enroute to their old town of Honaker to begin a revival.

Lcon Owens was standing in front of "OldGlory" as he was being inaugurated as Republican President of the United States.

Jo Ann Newberry appeared then, driving down Fifth Avenue at Honaker searching for her husband, Bill Combs.

Mary Peck was an efficient little housewife at her new home at Raven, Virginia.

Henry Price was smiling happily as he was working at his new job, fitting hosiery for each lady customer.

Lloyd White was proudly trying to get someone to allow him to give them an injection of his new serum which was supposed to produce knowledge overnight.

Class Prophecy

Harry Wilson, who is now manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, was being congratulated on the success of his team.

I knew it was almost time for the program to end and I started to turn the receiver off, but as I started to do so that tiny Joan Wyatt stepped out on the stage to announce that she had just been made Miss America of 1965.

Then the program was over and I turned off the receiver and sighed. Ah, my friends had done well for themselves in life, but now I must apply fresh make-up and get ready to land at my destination, Hawaii.

Class Poem

(Lorene Musick and Jo Ann Newberry)

We, the members of this graduating class, Will be forgotten as the years come and pass.

But may the successors that take this tower, Never make waste of a single hour.

We fifty-seven seniors are the best of friends; All losses are restored and sorrows end.

The Torch has been ours; we've held it high In the past four years that have drifted by.

May those that succeed us never wear a frown; But only strive for a higher crown.

Marion Lee Akers is first on our list; She taught all our girls that certain twist.

John Artrip is a very bashful boy; Could Nancy fill his heart with joy?

When Jean Ann Baldwin walks down the street She looks for Garcel, whom she hopes to meet.

Mildred Ball, from up Big A Mountain way Can be seen with Jack Smith almost any day.

Don Barnhart is a pretty good guy; He never bothers us as we pass by.

Mildred Boyd is a cute blond Of whom we all are very fond.

Myrtle Lee Brown just joined us this year; But to us her presence is dear.

Doris Call is our laziest gal; And to all she's a true pal.

Bill Counts is as little as little can be, How he stays out of the way is a mystery to me.

Doris Crabtree just drives the boys wild With all of those new hair styles.

Geanette Crabtree, her own business does mind; If more of us were like her, it'd be just fine.

J. B. Crabtree, we must confess, Has a smile for everyone in H. H. S.

Bob Deel still hunts polecats; How in the world can he stand that?

Gene Dye always wears a grin Which extends from forehead to chin.

Kenneth Dye is a good looking guy; But he'll probably end up being a spy.

Lloyd Dye likes all the girls; Especially little blonds with curls.

Mona Dye thinks all the boys are fine But "Pea Soup" usually leads her line.

Oma Gay Dye loves to joke; And make us laugh until we choke.

Peggy Dye is one we all like, But she loves only Jim Allen VanDyke.

Sonny Faye Dye is a cute little chap; I guess he takes it after his pap.

Howard Fletcher is tall and straight; His ambition is to be president in eighty-eight.

Elmer Lee Fuller leaves all the girls alone, He probably will never own one for his own.

Roberta Gent is always so funny; And never stingy with her money.

Carl Henry Hart is our most handsome guy, And I'm sure I don't have to tell you why.

Jack Hess came from up Richlands way; But he'd rather be down here any day.

Bobby Hillman in basketball is good, And plays in the game just like he should. Irlon Honaker is next in the line; His equal would be hard to find.

James Honaker really makes us laugh With things he says in class.

Jimmy Hurt is really tall, But for him, Sue Keene will fall.

Hush, Betty Jackson, don't you cry, You'll get a "Shortt" guy by and by.

Glen Jackson is a wee bit shy; In our minds we wonder why.

Lula Jackson is always chewing her gum; If she'd pass it around, we'd all have some.

Nellie Jackson is one of those brunettes Who will be a success we all can bet.

Peggy Jackson is so pretty and sweet; She could sweep any man off his feet.

Clifford Jessee is a nice young man; He'll get a girl for his own if he can.

Jack Johnson is as lazy as can be; How he makes grades is a mystery to me.

Mary Sue Johnson has many a boy friend, But she's bound to get a blond in the end.

Freda Lockhart is still as a mouse; You hardly know she's in the house.

Betty Martin is big and loud; You can hear her voice in any crowd.

Kyle Miller is the star of the basketball team; When he makes a goal, we're bound to scream.

Wilbur Miller goes to see Nelcene each night, Say, thy must be getting along all right!

Betty Jo Musick is very good at singing; But soon she'll make the pots and pans start ringing.

Lorene Musick always does her best; Until the work is done, she has no rest.

Jo Ann Newberry is really bright, We wonder if she studies all night.

Leon Owens is a lady's man; But some old nagger he'll land.

Patty Parris is our basketball queen; Out on the court she'll always seen.

Mary K. Peck is nice and polite; We can't see how she stays so quiet.

Henry Price is really handy 'Cause with the girls he's a dandy.

Virginia Sims is short and fat; With Walter she loves to chat.

Brittain Turner hums and haws When the teacher on him calls.

Mildred VanDyke is always wearing a grin; Is it Howard's heart she's trying to win?

Kyle Wells in his classes is good; He studies like more of us should.

Lloyd White is from down Finney way, I bet he leaves that place some day.

Geneva Whited sure does like the boys; She plays with hearts as if they were toys.

Mary Rose Wilson is always so sweet; But there's a saying, "Still Waters Run Deep".

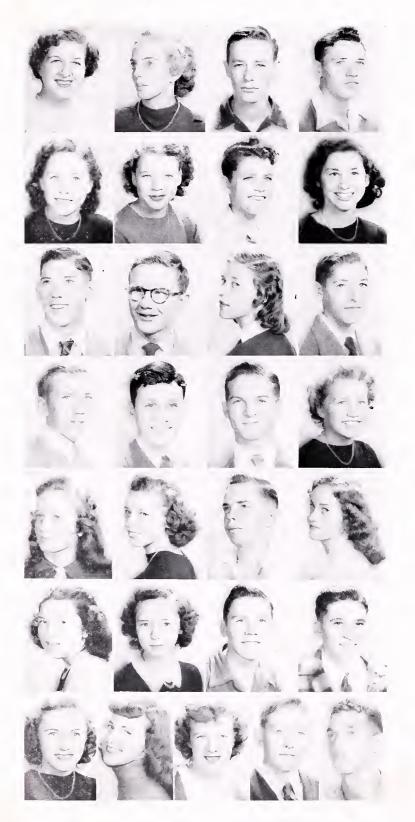

When it comes to athletics, Harry Wilson leads the line;

But in his lessons, he's a little behind.

Joan Wyatt is cute and small; As for the boys, she loves 'em all.
